

Galaxy formation: Insights from models

Joop Schaye¹

¹ Leiden Observatory, Leiden University

Abstract

Simulations of galaxy formation have become invaluable tools for the interpretation of observations, but their predictive power is often overestimated. I will discuss some of the limitations of the models and present recent results from the EAGLE and Aurora simulation projects.